

SHOCKING SCHOOLTEACHERS

David C F Wright PhD

Having been a teacher for many years. I have met some interesting and, indeed, wonderful children. I have met some interesting parents, some of whom, I believe, being so young that they were really children themselves. And I have met some teachers who should not have been teachers at all.

Let me introduce you to two such teachers who both have the first name of Stephen. Stephen One taught art at a High School and there were occasions when I used the train to come home and girls from that High School were on that train. I did not know them as I was not teaching at that school.

These girls were often crying and full of anger and so upset that everyone in the carriage heard them. They were complaining about Stephen One who was offering them money if they posed nude for them after school but, on the understanding, that they did not tell their parents. Stephen would paint pictures of them or make a sculpture.

I had opportunity to observe this man as he lived next to a girl friend. He was in a relationship with Rose and had two children.

One Christmas, we were invited to their house. Stephen was lying on the floor ostensibly playing with his children but what he was doing was trying to look up my girl friends skirt. I left the room for a few minutes and when I returned he was showing Carol a book on nudes. When he saw me, he blushed furiously and closed the book and left the room.

In his house he had framed pictures of his children full frontal nude. Downstairs he had his own photo developing facility.

During the summer, his daughter would invite other girls to their house to play and Stephen would have a game which he regularly played with them. He would lie on his back on his lawn and play music on his radio and the girls had to step over his face, walk round, step over his face etc. When he stopped the music, the girls had to stop still and be statues. The music always stopped when a girl was open legged astride his face and he would look up her skirt. He derived a lot of pleasure from this.

I am not a beach person, but, on a couple of occasions, I had to walk to a house accessed by the sea wall. On both occasions, Stephen was on the wall with his binoculars and he was not looking at passing ships but girls in bikinis and his speciality was girls precariously changing behind towels.

One night just before midnight, he called at Carol's house asking her on a date and trying to force his way in. Then he realised I was there, and left.

Much later, I had to visit his school on a few occasions. He would wait at the foot of the stairs and when some girls in short skirts ascended the stairs he would follow at a distance which gave him the views he wanted.

There are reports that he walked in the girls showers when they were washing after playing sport. He was reported and the Governors refused to do anything about this. He was such a good teacher!!

He did persuade some girls to make impressions of their breasts in paper mache or some other system which he used in his art classes.

Although he was living with Rose, he had an affair with the French teacher, a Miss C. He was seen in the act by some students. That evening, Miss C's partner called at Stephen's house and there was an ugly fight in the street.

I urged Carol many times to have nothing to do with this evil man. She replied, 'Well, I can't ignore him. I have to speak to him, and I do like Rose'.

Incidentally, Carol is not her real name.

Stephen was aware that I knew about him and one day he ranted at me saying that he hated me because I was judgmental. But he was a pervert, a voyeur, a dirty old man. Was he also an abuser of children? Was he a paedophile?

Stephen Two raped a woman, Sophia, on the Downs when taking her home after school. To this day I do not understand why he was not tried at Crown Court. Instead, he went to the Magistrates Court and found guilty and given the highest fine magistrates could give. The case was in the press but he still taught at the Middle School. Then his flat was raided by the Police who found many indecent pictures of children but nothing happened. He should have gone to prison.

Worse was to follow.

On a hot day he refused to have any windows open in his class room. An eleven year old girl, Amy, said she could not breathe as she was asthmatic and had left her Ventolin in the cloakroom and could she go and get it.

This request was denied and the girl collapsed and died in the classroom.

And still he carried on teaching.

At a Middle School near me there is a teacher, Mrs S. I used to teach at this school as a supply teacher from time to time, Twice I witnessed her hit boys around the head. I reported it. But nothing was done. The governors said that she was a good teacher. A fellow teacher, John, told me that Mrs S was bad tempered at her times of the month and could be savage.

I replied that she should not be teaching.

At my last school, we had a boy who was difficult. He would interrupt a class with an outrageous question irrelevant to the subject was taking. One he put up his hand and said, 'Sir, will you tell us what a hermaphrodite is?'

I refused to have him in my class thereafter. The management was cross with me.

Let me tell you about the teacher John referred to above. He took football practice after school on Tuesdays and I assisted him.

One day a boy in his football gear, including his studs, swung his foot at a girl. John grabbed the boy by the arms and pulled him away preventing a serious injury to that girl. In doing this, John marked the boy's arm and he was accused of abuse, suspended and investigated. After a while, he was exonerated and promised compensation which he accepted. Later, he enquired about the compensation only to be told that the money was not available.

In my last years as a schoolmaster the Department of Education (DoE) instructed us that we could not shout at a pupil and always have a distance between the pupil and self and that any detention had to be arranged by a parent who would have the final say as to the date and time of that detention.

One other problem is that most schools are exclusively, or almost exclusively, run by lady teachers until High School. This creates problems and, as someone has said, "This is petticoat government.' It also panders to feminism and is in violation of equality of the sexes.

We are allowed to teach evolution as a fact, whereas it is not. It is a theory. We are not to teach Christianity but to say that all religions are valid. We must not hint at any criticism of gays and living with someone to whom you are not married is the same as marriage. It is not wrong. A child born out of wedlock is not a bastard or illegitimate but a love child. And we are teach sex education to children as young as six. Well, Mr Blair, I will not have my morality changed by you.
